"...Fifty years ago an American girl would have been ashamed to be seen in public with too little on. Now she's embarrassed to be seen with too much on - even if she's in church...Hefner was imposing his new standards on society, making us conform to his new ideas of goodness, truth, and beauty...If you're younger than 40, you might mistake Hefner's topsy-turvy world for normal..."

"Over five years, my account has shifted from not always safe for work posts to my REAL safe for work life. The real me. I was living for other people before, to make others happy, suffering internally in the process...Certain photos grow followings fast...I don't know whether I felt empowered by dressing scantily clad, showing cleavage, etc...or if I just felt it was expected of me or what..."

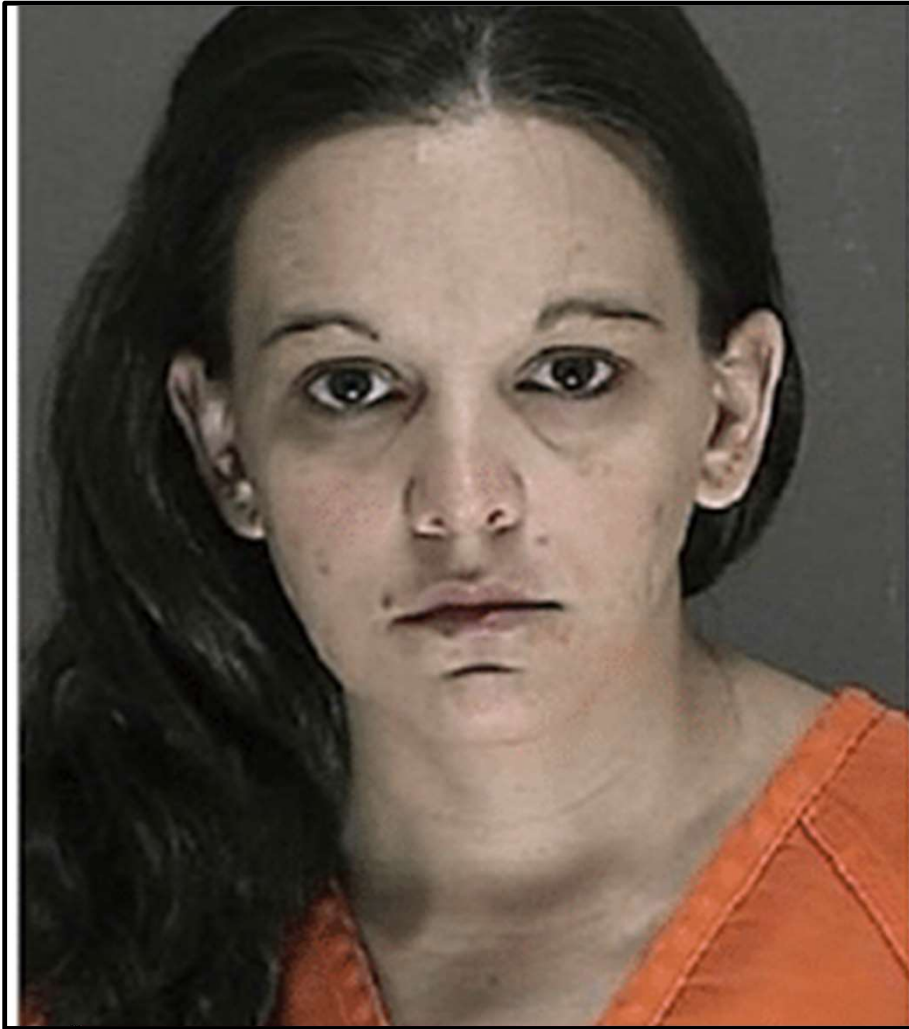

...but now I can confidently and 100%...say, modesty is what empowers me these days, and because it feels so much better internally, it will probably be this way for the rest of my life...I removed everything fake from my body and deleted all my old photos. I am more authentic, vulnerable...I saw followers drop by the thousands every day...Every day. I was watching the girls that had similar pages keep posting the same scantily clad stuff and growing exponentially while I tanked hard...But now it has shifted. Now it's in the green. Most days the count is growing...Now I truly feel I have an army of supporters that care and see an actual soul behind the lens..."

"Not only does it [cane sugar] leave you feeling irritable and hungry, but it also rots your teeth and adds pounds to your waistline...Worse yet, research shows that a diet laced with sugar can be more ageing for the skin than a lifetime of lying in the sun...When sugar enters the body, it causes a spike in insulin levels, which causes inflammation below the skin..."

This process can weaken collagen and elastin and accelerate the ageing of the skin...Dr Emma Derbyshire, Public Health Nutritionist [explains...] that there is emerging evidence that high-sugar diets can advance skin ageing through a process known as glycation...[We] are now beginning to see links between high-sugar diets and skin ageing...'
