Sermon: Sermon Audio and Covid-19 Forgiveness “Someone Has to Say it!” Pt.1

I Text:

New Covenant: Matthew 5

II Doctrine:

The Atlantic magazine has set off a firestorm of backlash after publishing an article regarding the pandemic. In the article the author Emily Oster asks us to forgive and forget many of the mistakes that were made based on ignorance. The problem is those in charge of the pandemic reaction knew the lock downs and vaccines were useless. These “Mea Culpa” type articles will continue to be written only because the horrific side effects of being vaccinated are becoming mainstream. Forgiving people does not mean ignoring crimes that they committed. Those who committed crimes must be prosecuted.

Mature Christian leaders must start addressing the issues brought up in this article now. Faithful ministries like Sermon Audio should not be weakened over issues like this. Sermon Audio has been the new printing press in the fight to reform the Church once again. Many faithful Pastors and their message will continue to be banned on other platforms, that is why this service to God’s people is essential. I do ask for an attitude of forgiveness towards Pastor’s who were proponents of the vaccine on this platform. Many stood up against the lock downs but “trusted the Science” when it came to the vaccines. I personally know faithful Pastor’s who have harmed themselves and their own families with the vaccines. They were truly deceived and did not have a nefarious motive behind their support of the vaccine.

I will explain why I believe so many older Pastor’s had a blind spot regarding vaccinations. They grew up in a world before the “Club of Rome” and it’s paradigm shift regarding population growth. In the early 1970’s the governments of the world started to see their own people as the number one threat to their survival. This is why all of a sudden the culture of death began being pushed en masse. The unholy trinity of birth control, perversion, and euthanasia became the goal of western world governments. This is not a conspiracy theory but a well published goal of western governments.

III Comparing Scripture With Scripture:

1) The Atlantic magazine has set off a firestorm of backlash after publishing an article regarding the pandemic. In the article the author Emily Oster asks us to forgive and forget many of the mistakes that were made based on ignorance. The problem is those in charge of the pandemic reaction knew the lock downs and vaccines were useless. These “Mea Culpa” type articles will continue to be written only because the horrific side effects of being vaccinated are becoming mainstream. Forgiving people does not mean ignoring crimes that they committed. Those who committed crimes must be prosecuted.
