Does instructing your children in the Bible on a regular basis guarantee their obedience to you, or the Lord?

No, but a parent must instruct regardless, because it is a command by God.

Series: Colossians

Sermon: Colossians 3:20-21

- 1. How would you lovingly advise a parent who shuns their God given responsibility to educate their children in the instruction of the Lord by saying, “My child’s education about spiritual matters is the church’s responsibility.”

---

---

---

- 2. What are some benefits (pros) of parents seeing the Biblical command to teach their children about the Lord and doing so on a regular basis within the home?

---

---

---

---

What are some possible detriments (cons) of not teaching children about the Lord on a regular basis within the home?

---

---

---

---

- 3. Much liberty is given to parents as to how instruction in the Lord can be done in the home. Brainstorm and share ideas on how this could be done. Be practical as if someone at the table has just heard of this concept today and wants to begin this week.

---

---

---

---

---

---

- 4. What are fathers commanded to not be or do in Col. 3:21 and Eph. 6:4?

_____ In his letters to the Colossians and to the Ephesians, Paul addresses parents with just a few words, but both times provides similar commands of what NOT to do. As a parent, how can you determine if you are disciplining well, or if you have become harsh and provoking your child to anger?

---

---

---

- 5. According to Col. 3:19 and Eph. 6:1, why are children to obey their parents?

_____ How can you teach a child that his disobedience to you (the parent) is not just a difference of opinion, but displeases the Lord and is even sinful?
