

News & Notes for June 12, 2023

(June 9, 2023)

I was looking over my articles recently after Word Press sent me a happy anniversary wish for being with Word Press for 14 years (that long?), and I noticed it's been a while since I've done a News and Notes Update. In fact, the last one was February 1, 2021. It's past time for another one, so here goes and the links are at the bottom of the article.

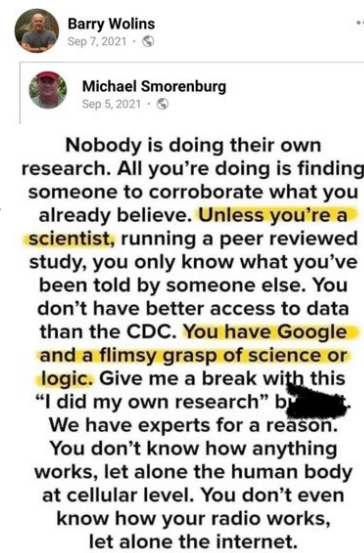

Your Own Research

Interestingly enough, during the height of CV and even as it waned, we heard from many sources that we should never do or rely on our own research. Heaven forbid. Why? Because none of us are doctors of course. The image I've included expresses the sentiment the best and I've edited out the expletive. So, according to Michael Smorenburg (posted by Barry Wolins, whom we'll get to in a minute), unless you're an actual scientist, how dare you impersonate one! Don't try this at home because what you learn may kill you!

Actually, Smorenburg's post highlights his vapidty. Most of us do not go on the Internet and simply look for memes that support a position we like. Instead, we actually spend time reading white papers written by professional doctors, medical researchers, epidemiologists and/or scientists. Usually, those published reports/studies explain how they arrived to their conclusions and what those conclusions mean. I suppose there are some people who go on the 'Net to simply search for a picture with a saying or meme attached to it and that's how they determine their truth. The majority of us don't do that. We put the time in to study, read, compare and conclude. It sounds simple but it normally takes hours and hours.

So Smorenburg is actually pushing for people to blindly and like dumb sheep, simply accept what people like Fauci say. We should simply obey without critical thinking as any sort of response. Just do it. Nah. I've never done that I don't plan on starting now. In fact, I learned to actually research when I began studies for my masters and then my doctorate. There's a great deal of reading and writing associated with both of those degrees in just about any field.

As far as Barry Wolins goes (the guy who posted the comments by Smorenburg), he was a surfing legend. I say "was" because he recently died suddenly. There is a misprint on the image. Wolins actually died May 7, 2023 (not 2021 as one image states). He made it a point to note in a November 14, 2021 post that he was fully vaccinated against CV. There are a growing number of these folks who ridiculed (or worse), anyone who did not get the CV jab, claiming the unvaxxed were selfish and even potential murderers. But who's still alive now?

Surfing legend, Barry Wolins, died suddenly on May 7, 2021. As seen in his posts, he scoffed at any warnings against the experimental fast-tracked Covid vaccines. His Nov. 14, 2021 post says he is fully vaccinated. The point made was anyone questioning "science" is stupid. RIP

There have been thousands if not hundreds of thousands of deaths following the CV jab. In fact, there has been a "...63,060% increase in Child Excess Deaths across Europe." [1] Again, that's just in Europe. We won't talk about Australia, New Zealand, the USA or other places throughout the world and apparently, neither will the mainstream media. Why? Because they're probably told they cannot discuss or highlight it, unless it is an attempt to debunk it and the attempts fail miserably as far as thinking people are concerned.

People are dying suddenly in high numbers and unlike the days prior to the release of the CV jab when all news bureaus kept a tally of new CV cases and deaths, there's not even a peep out of the same bureaus regarding the increasing numbers of sudden deaths and severe adverse reactions to the jab. I find that fascinating and telling.

Daily, I read of folks - young to old as well as the very young - who die suddenly. The response from medical community is "Gee, we are simply baffled." Mark my words folks. When the numbers of sudden deaths increase to the point where they won't be able to hide it any longer, they will use those numbers to scare society into believing that another "pandemic" is upon us. They will turn a deaf ear to anyone who asks about whether or not the excess deaths are representative of the vaxxed or unvaxxed communities. In fact, those folks who dare ask that question will be emotionally and verbally eviscerated into silence and then censored and banned. There are things you are not allowed to ask today.

Digitization of the World

The powers that be understand that the only way to successfully control over 90% of the world's population is to force everyone down the narrowing corridor toward digital everything: health passports, licenses, banking (via digital currencies), and all the rest. To make that work well, there needs to be one group or organization responsible for it, acting as a clearing house for everything digital. Guess what? The WHO is that group. You can read about it in Dr. Mercola's article below. [2] Please note, the link will download a PDF to your computer. If you do not want that, please do not click the link.

The WHO, taking orders from the WEF, plans on creating a world where everything is governed by digital access. If you do not have the proper digital credentials, you won't be allowed into certain areas or

Psalms 2

The Reign of the Lord's Anointed

1 Why do the nations rage ~~*~~ and the peoples plot in vain? 2 The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the LORD and against his Anointed, saying, 3 "Let us burst their bonds apart and cast away their cords from us."

4 He who sits in the heavens laughs; the Lord holds them in derision.

Psalms 2 explains why the current global system is being built. Remember, God laughs at their efforts not in humor but in ridicule.

even able to leave your area if it's a "15-minute city." The reason they are doing this (they say), is because "climate change" is such a major threat to this planet that people in charge must take aggressive action to minimize and even reverse the effects of said change. This means that for your own good (whether you like it or not), unelected bureaucrats must take the reins, remove many of the freedoms you're used to and tighten things up quite a bit. If this is not done, then we can kiss this world good-bye, they say.

Of course, going fully digital ultimately gives control to those same unelected bureaucrats, who will use all that power to decide what we can eat, whether or not we can use our own money (it'll be digital, so they'll be able to turn our access off to it), where we can go and how often, what we can drive, etc., etc., etc. Of course, the unelected bureaucrats will have no such limitations. They'll eat the best of everything, go wherever they need to go as often as needed, always have access to their money and essentially be above the laws they want to impose on the rest of us (serfs).

All of this is now being sold to society as making life easier, convenient, and therefore, safer for everyone. Because of this, most people will sadly go along with it.

Going along with it would not have worked two or three generations ago, but it is working today because this generation of young people growing up now have their phones and their digital worlds. They're quite used to that and it is a huge and viable part of their lives.

I can still remember life prior to the Internet and even before home computers. I recall the very first cell phone I bought my wife. These three things; cell phones, home computers and the Internet have so drastically changed life that not only is there no going back, but we are speeding toward the day when freedom will also be a thing of the past, with people imprisoned in their own tiny "homes" receiving their Universal Basic Income (UBI).

Don't worry though, because companies like Apple are getting ready to release the next virtual reality headset (Apple Vision Pro [3]), at a cost of about $3,499 (I mistakenly quoted the wrong price in the audio for this article), and the experience will apparently seriously up the ante for those who wear them. This is what they want for us serfs. They want us not thinking about or going out into the beautiful world out there that God created for us to enjoy. They want to navigate us toward the "inner" world of virtual reality where we'll have hours and hours of a world where we can be and do anything we want in the comfort of a tiny, physical prison. No thanks.

Soon, don't be surprised if your state announces that driver's licenses are going digital. It won't be mandatory at first, but it'll quickly get there because it'll be "easier, convenient and safer" to have a digital driver's license in your digital "wallet" than in your physical wallet. I just checked my driver's license and it doesn't expire until 2030. That's a bit less than 7 years from now, so we'll see what transpires by then.

Global Police State

In order to be able to force the digital will of globalists onto all people, there must be a very physical law enforcement force that will ensure everyone complies. Think of China, a technocracy controlled by unelected bureaucrats (Xi again, is simply the lead puppet, who answers to and does what technocrats want). In order to enforce the mandates issued by technocrats through Xi and China's puppet government, a huge "police" force is needed to crack heads and deal with people who will not comply.

So in reality, the best way to enforce the mandates issued by technocrats throughout the world, is by having a world police force that has no problem cracking heads when meeting people who fail to comply. This is actually being established now via the UN. This organization would likely not have been created except for the efforts of socialist FDR, but here we are in 2023, watching as the UN, the WHO and other UN-related agencies gain more power over the people of this world.

Note that Sustainable Development Goal 16 has this as its purpose:

Promote peaceful and inclusive societies for sustainable development, provide access to justice for all and build effective, accountable and inclusive institutions at all levels. [4]

Isn't that swell? Sounds so inclusive, fair and even innocuous doesn't it? How do you think they'll actually accomplish this? If you said "force," you'd be correct. The linked article also notes this about this particular sustainable development goal.

The real purpose of SDG16 is threefold: (1) empower a global governance regime, (2) exploit threats, both real and imagined, to advance regime objectives; and (3) force an unwarranted, unwelcome, centrally controlled global system of digital identity (digital ID) upon humanity.

I've bolded the word "regime" because in order to make any plan workable, there has to be a group behind it. The larger the group and the more global the goals, the more power is needed to support the goals. There must be a global police force that can go anywhere and deal with problems as they arise or even before they arise.

Notice how point #3 above is related to a "global system of digital identity" that will be forced on humanity. They know it is "unwarranted" and "unwelcome" and it is because of that they know they are in for a rough road. To counter that, they need a police for that is willing to use force (even lethal), on people who object to be treated like cattle.

Interestingly enough, part of this stated sustainable goal will be completed by the target date of 2030, so I guess that answers my question regarding digitization.

By 2030, provide legal identity for all, including birth registration.

I wish I had more space and time to write more about this, but I will do another News and Notes soon, highlighting more areas that are being taken over by technocrats and forced onto society. Suffice it to say that we have a very severe uphill battle ahead of us and frankly, like many of my readers, I believe they have brought us too far to change direction. The most we can do is slow things down but I seriously doubt we can stop it.

This global system is being built. God is allowing it. Satan will appear to win, but God will gain the glory.
