Sunday Food For Thought: the necessity and responsibility for passing on the hope and legacy of the Christian faith (God's character and Word) falls on fathers, through teaching and discipleship to the next generation.

1. Since people in Biblical times did not have full access to scripture, what took the place of history books, schools and the Bible for learning about God ?

2. What does this believer (Asaph) want future believers to know and not forget about God?

3. What would happen if the next generation forgot? Who is responsible to see to it that they remember ?
