

QUESTION & ANSWER SESSION

I. Questions

- A. Where does the line change from knowing our husbands well and using that knowledge to manipulate?

House projects?

Invitations to spend time with other believers?

- B. The other example is when I want to have something done, instead of asking him, I start the project and then he invariably steps in and "does it right" but not happily. Am I using my manipulation to accomplish the task I want?*

- C. Regarding any BIG marriage troubles, once they've passed, I'm ready and already have moved on. Of course we can never forget, but we've got to move on. Why can't women move on?*

How long is it right to withhold romance because she has not gotten over my failures?

- D. When should he have the final say? I don't feel it is a matter of who is right, but why do I feel that submitting is controlling - in our relationship. I guess the bottom line is, why must everything be done with his permission and if the tables are turned, I have no right to my opinion?

1. Meals?
2. Decorating decisions?
- 3.

E. What are the limits for a woman to be submissive? Sarah obeyed Abraham saying she was his sister, then prepared to be Pharaoh's wife. Wasn't it immoral for Abraham to hide the fact that they were married? Would Sarah have been wrong to refuse Abraham's request?

Example – What is the wife's obligation scripturally regarding the secrecy of her husband's illegal activities? Scripture and Human Law – If your husband is doing something illegal and his wife is aware of him breaking the law, she could be co-guilty with him. Does she turn him in to the authorities? (Income taxes/speeding tickets vs. imbezzlement or murder?)
