Derek Thomas, “Our prayers may make little impact to those who hear them in this world, but when they reach heaven, they are sent back as ‘revered thunder.’ The power of prayer is truly immense.”

- D. And there followed peals of thunder and sounds and flashes of lightning and an earthquake (5b)

Conclusion

1. Sometimes there is silence!
Sometimes God is silent.
Sometimes we should be silent (Psa. 46:10; 62:1, 5)

Silence is not non-activity (where is God?) it is the precursor to Him acting.
It is expectation, it is worship.

2. The prayers of the saints: Pleasing sacrifice
  - a) Prayer is a pleasing sacrifice. But not just any kind of prayer.
  - b) The prayers of the saints are the means by which God accomplishes His purposes.
  - c) Persevering in prayer (all the prayers!)

Whatever our own feelings may be about the matter, it is certain that every true prayer gets into the golden censer that our great High Priest swings before the eternal throne. There is not one of those birds that we send up towards heaven which does not really reach its destination. If its own wings are not strong enough to bear it up so high, Christ reaches His almighty hand down and lifts it all the rest of the way. Somehow, all the true prayers of all the saints must get into the golden censer in Christ’s hand. CHS

3. God always acts. The God who sets His people praying, will not let their prayers go unanswered. The purpose and plan of God go hand in hand with the prayers of His people.
